learning to build distributed systems is hard especially if they are large scale it's not that there is a lack of information out there you can find academic papers engineering blogs and even books on the subject the problem is that the available information is spread out all over the place and if you were to put it on a spectrum from theory to practice you would find a lot of material at the two ends but not much in the middle that is why i decided to write a book that brings together the core theoretical and practical concepts of distributed systems so that you don't have to spend hours connecting the dots this book will guide you through the fundamentals of large scale distributed systems with just enough details and external references to dive deeper this is the guide i wished existed when i first started out based on my experience building large distributed systems that scale to millions of requests per second and billions of devices if you are a developer working on the backend of web or mobile applications or would like to be this book is for you when building distributed applications you need to be familiar with the network stack data consistency models scalability and reliability patterns observability best practices and much more although you can build applications without knowing much of that you will end up spending hours debugging and re architecting them learning hard lessons that you could have acquired in a much faster and less painful way however if you have several years of experience designing and building highly available and fault tolerant applications that scale to millions of users this book might not be for you as an expert you are likely looking for depth rather than breadth and this book focuses more on the latter since it would be impossible to cover the field otherwise the second edition is a complete rewrite of the previous edition every page of the first edition has been reviewed and where appropriate reworked with new topics covered for the first time the book includes high quality research papers presented at the international conference on innovative computing and communication icicc 2018 which was held at the guru nanak institute of management gnm delhi india on 5 6 may 2018 introducing the innovative works of scientists professors research scholars students and industrial experts in the field of computing and communication the book promotes the transformation of fundamental research into institutional and industrialized research and the conversion of applied exploration into real time applications
